members should be reappointed straight to the Senate, and the Government should be breaking in pieces. If there are Ma.P. positive that the electors are in favour of the measure, well, the measure for the Government is a foregone conclusion. They must have the modesty to wait until the popular verdict is definitely obtained in a straightforward manner.

If only the members of the Upper House would fast for a week, and then vote for the measure, it would be a great public service. I am, &c.

JUNE 20. EDWARD J. H. KNAPP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As to-day, Wednesday, is fixed for the consideration of the above measure in the Legislative Council, I would, with your permission, now say a few words on the subject. These last week might be given effect to, and that is, that the Government should introduce a Local Government Bill at once, and in the meantime, the Government should not vote for the measure in its favour of the Payment of Members Bill for the country. By a Local Government Bill the central Government would be enabled to get the Government of the provinces to fall on their shoulders at present. These local bodies would do away with that very large class of road and drainage committees, and would give up the members of members of the Legislative Assembly. If this were done the number of members of the central Government could be reduced to 100, and the Government would be able to do as much as ours, and would be the means of securing a better class of representatives. The question before the country is not whether to have a free trade or a protectionist free trade should be the fiscal policy of the country, and the result was in favour of free trade. The payment of members was only put in the political programme to keep up the protectionist matter in the Government programme. That is why the question now should be made a separate and direct one independent of the fact of converting protectionist into free trade, or free trade into protection. Now comes it if the protectionists really believed that a protective policy would be the means of making a better class of representatives for the working man, that some of its leaders did not move that the sum of £40,000, or even £100,000, be placed at the disposal of the Government for the trade, and thus give work to the working man, besides developing our resources; but no, these amiable patriots would rather have the Government pay the members of the House than they vote a subsidy of £40,000 to themselves for supposed services.

As an Australian, I am proud to think that not a domestic industry has been protected themselves £300 a year are New South Welshmen, not that it matters much where a man comes from, but that the Government should be able to protect the trade Mallorca. No doubt it was very humiliating to Sir Henry Parkes to be made to eat the protectionist leak; the Paymaster of Members Bill, however, after listening to his speech, have uttered the availing protest he did; but the country expects the Upper Chamber to come to the aid of the Government, and to support the Government's hands into the public treasury, and lay a burden on the people without a direct vote being taken, although they have secured the same result by their own action. The Government are imposing such a burden on the people, and that the threat of the "Government hirings," as Mr. J. P. Abbott termed these men on a previous occasion, will be in vain.

I am, &c., WM. DUNNEHA.

NEW MARINE BOARD REGULATIONS.

— TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD. —

Sir,—I see by the Gazette that the Marine Board has again passed the regulations which the late Government disallowed on account of their impracticability. I do not know whether the regulations are so good as the conditions under which a vessel may be sunk—that is, that she is not to sink "immediately"—and they have extended the limit from thirty minutes per hour, in a way that makes it still more inconvenient to passengers who are anxious to reach their destination. I think the regulations are so good that the Attorney-General has given an opinion expressing doubts on the legality of those regulations of the board, which opinion the board has persuaded the Treasury to ignore, and to put them in force even if necessary, and in the opinion of those well qualified to judge, useless, as well as illegal. I advise that steps be taken to prevent the regulations from coming into effect. I trust myself, as I have now no interest in harbour steamers except as a daily traveller by them; but as I know how injurious those regulations will prove I am willing to contribute towards the cost of repealing them by an appeal to a proper tribunal. I advise that between this and the 1st September, when they are to come into operation, the executive organs afford an opportunity to the board in order to protect themselves from being drawn into difficulties which may now seem remote, but which are sure to arise. I am, therefore, convinced that the board will not be asked to do anything which they feel to be decisive action. The Marine Board has proved itself in many ways disregardful of the comfort of the public, and I am sure that the public will not have taken up this "bad" thoughtlessly, and having been misled in their opinion by the members of the board, who, I know from practical experience that which the board as at present constituted can never learn. They (the members of the board) are not aware that they are wrong, and this opinion I, I know, shared in by nine-tenths of the large shipowners and builders, and harbour authorities, and I am sure that the only remedy for this kind of procedure is doubtless a reconstitution of the board, which successive Governments have been unable to do, and which I am sure will never. But there is meanwhile this consolation and check, that the powers of the board are limited by the law, and that the board cannot do anything which will do very much harm if they are not permitted to exceed their powers as given by the Navigation Act.

I am, &c., C. E. JEANNERET.

LADIES' HATS AT THEATRES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I quite endorse all that "Spectator" says in regard to the above. If he, who stands off, in his stockings, finds it a difficult matter to see the stage, or if he has been told by some friend, "he can't see a little over his tin," A few nights ago I attended the performance at one of the theatres, and selected a seat in the stalls from whence I hoped to have had a good view; to my dismay, shortly before the performance commenced, three ladies with tall hats entered, and seated themselves directly in the line of sight, and so completely all star of the stage from those behind me.

The head-gear of the one in front of me was a marvel of construction, and projected an outline on the curtain, as the lights were occasionally turned down, and she looked up, or bowed her face towards the corroboree; through the loop of ribbon which represented her nose, I managed, now and then, to obtain a glimpse of her eyes, or blazes of light, which seemed to emanate from the centre of the corroboree. The majority of the audience though very amusing, were by no means complimentary to the wearers. One person said, "I paid my three shillings to see a play, not to look on such top-knappers as these."

THE LEOPERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A Arden" in the course of his interesting article on Leprosy, in your issue of to-day, states, with reference to the Hospital at St. George's, Sydney, that they are "safely disposed of." I venture to state that such is not means the case, and that the conditions of the management of the unfortunate patients is a standing menace to the community. It may be said that they are officially termed "isolated" but they are much too near the hospital buildings to be safe, and on several occasions have been caught after nightfall prowling about among the trees, and have been discovered by the hospital cooks, in the hospital kitchens, and taken to them, as a rule, by convalescent scrapping if they have a mind to. One did escape twice, and was subsequently confined in a room situated midway between the fever hospital and the sanatorium, being guarded night and day by convalescent patients. I know for a fact that the resident superintendent at Little Bay has represented repeatedly and strongly to the Board of Health the danger of having the lepers at Little Bay at all.

NO FURTHER NEWS OF THE ENTOMBED MINERS.

THE CONDITION OF THE BEREAVED FAMILIES.

VISIT OF LORD CARRINGTON TO THE SCENE OF THE DISASTER.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

NEWCASTLE, THURSDAY.

The prospects of recovering the imprisoned, if buried, miners are little or no better to-day than they were yesterday. The rescuing party and labouring incessantly and are making all possible progress, having cut their way through considerable distance of fallen stuff since Saturday morning under difficult and hazardous circumstances. That the outlook is poor can be judged from the fact that Mr. Turnbull, the underground manager, came up at 7.30 this evening with no intention of turning to-morrow, he reporting steady advance towards the spot where the men are supposed to be. Progress is continuously made, regardless of the falling stone, in the work of timbering to ensure the safety of the miners engaged in the search. Mr. Turnbull, in reply to questions, stated that he estimated that some 20 yards further would have to be penetrated to reach the place where one of the men was seen partly under the debris by his comrades who very nearly shared his terrible fate. That 20 yards might be accomplished by to-morrow evening, before which they do not anticipate finding the body in question.

Mr. Mackenzie, Examiner of Collieries, sent the following telegram to the Minister for Mines to-day:—"Have just come out of the A. A. mine (12.30 a.m.). A heavy fall took place in a northerly direction in the crescent flat. The fall was looked for and expected by Mr. Dixon, Inspector of Collieries, yesterday evening. Thinking it would take place about the night which it did, Mr. Dixon and Mr. Ross, of the Newcastle Coal Company, came into the mine at 10.15 a.m. and made an inspection in the vicinity of the fall, which took place last night finding it down, as they expected. Work is at present time progressing favourably at the far end of the crescent, and it is thought that in about four hours, by 2.30 to 3 p.m., another five yards will have been advanced. Yesterday and last night about 10 yards of bad ground, towards where some of the entombed men are believed to be, was checked and timbered.

The fall of rock, which must cover many acres of ground, has left indelible scars of the terrible settled upon the village of over 2000 people. Hills and flat land have suffered several quakes. The hills have suffered several quakes through the shaking, showing great fissures, and at intervals fully six inches wide. A powerful storm named Charles Heath, who lives inland, came over the place where the ground has fallen, describes the effect on Saturday morning as being like several shocks of earthquake. His houses, of wooden structure, withstood the shaking; but brick building, he feels sure, would have succumbed to the shaking. The ground is so full of fissures, was so great that it caused an extraordinary tremor. The surface gives no indication of a depression so far, but this will doubtless take place in numerous places, the cracks running east and west. The extent of the underground workings will be pretty well understood from this result.

The Mayor of Newcastle, Mr. Buchanan, accompanied by Mr. Coe, the Mayor of Manchester, two members of the Hamilton Mines' Local Committee visited the homes of the unfortunate miners to-day with a view of ascertaining the exact condition of the wives and families. They found that Mr. Beaumont has 5 children between the ages of 6 and 15 years. Peisy, 7 children, 4 between 10 and 15 years. Mr. Mowbray 5 children, 4 between the months of 4 years. Mr. Frost 8 children, 1 to 7 years, and a stepson 15 years. Mr. Hodgson, four children, 6 to 14 years, the eldest being a very delicate girl. Young Hackett, one of the 11 in the mine, has been the principal support of his aged mother and mother-in-law, and is said to have a wife and two children.

England.

Lord Carrington has arranged to come up tomorrow morning to see the afflicted wives and families and console with them in their singular and bereavement. He is to leave tonight at 12.16. The Government will be anxious to entertain his Excellency at the Great Northern Hotel. A member of the Government will be with the Governor.

LARGE LARGES.

The last shift of miners forming the search party came up at 12.30 to-night. They report similar progress, and predict that all goes well. Murphy's heading should be reached by the next shift. Murphy's heading is where they expect to find some of the bodies; and it is reckoned that 9 o'clock this morning some definite news should be at hand.

Dr. Craven and Nash, who have been down since every night, and in readiness with medical and surgical appliances in case of need, were refused admitted to the mine in mid-night to-night. The explanation given for the refusal was that their own men were not on the list supplied by the manager to the overman in charge. The doctors were very much put out at the refusal, seeing that their own instruments and medical appearances were do do in the mine, as they had left them the previous night.

Mr. Sydney Smith, Minister for Mines, received the following telegram from Mr. Macchettan, Examiner of Coalfields, last night:—"Now, 5 p.m. just closed. A fire at A. Company's mine, as indicated by the further five A- and B- signals, and lumbered at 4.30 p.m., that and favourable progress was being made in securing the crooked heading towards where some of the men were known to be. We send you further report about 9 o'clock, giving the distance at which the first A- is determined to be."

At a quarter-past 9 last night the Minister for Mines received the following telegram from Examiner of Coalfields:—"Just returned, 9 p.m. from Hamilton pit. The last six hours a woman, who came out of the mine at 6 p.m., stated that timbered, and cleared the crooked heading in a distance of 17 ft. Mr. Treadwell is of opinion that they were at 6 p.m. about 18 yards from where the nearest entombed men are supposed to be."

A telegram to the following effect was received last night by Mr. Grayson, general superintendent to the A. Company, who is at present on a visit to Sydney:—"17 ft. Mr. Treadwell is of opinion that what is known as the first fall, and now working at the big fall, which they expect out through by to-night (Wednesday), when they anticipate being very near the spot where the bodies of the miner Potts is supposed to be lying."

The Postmaster-General has received a telegram from the Postmaster-General of Queensland intimating that his Government agrees to the proposal that the Imperial Government should mail the steamer which leaves Adelaide on Wednesday, although the alterations will involve to some extent a very considerable loss of time. Mr. Deane has wired the Postmaster-General of New South Wales expressing a desire that the colonies should be unanimous on the subject, and suggesting that the Agents-General should be instructed to interview the Imperial Postmaster-General again for having Thursday adopted as the day of departure of the mail steamers. Failing this, he suggests the P. & O. boats should leave on Wednesday, and the Orient boats on Thursday, if that arrangement would be convenient to the Imperial Government.

Another deputation, representing the same trade, and travelled down by the same steamer, opposed the application. ## ATTEMPTED MURDER OF A CONSTABLE.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.)

SHOT BY A BURGLAR.

A PROMPT ARREST.

Another case in which a constable has been gravely wounded while arresting a burglar occurred at an early hour yesterday morning. On a lonely beat, beyond any ordinary police station, a constable of the Darlinghurst division attacked three men armed with firearms who were attempting to break into the house of Judge Stephen, on the Glenmore-road. The constable's baton and handcuffs were practically useless, for while one of the burglars struggled with him and the other two, the constable was shot in the chest, and before the alarm could be raised, they all decamped. Even the constable's alarm whistle, which is supposed to be an effective means of summoning aid, proved useless, as the wounds rendered him unable to apply it to his mouth, and when it was blown by the first arrival to arrive at the scene, it failed to secure any assistance. The circumstances of the case have caused some questioning of the conditions under which constables in outlying beats have to perform their duty, and Judge Stephen has written to the Premier and the Inspector-General on the subject.

Although severely injured, the constable, after lying in bed for some days, is now recovering, and is now able to sit up. The burglar who shot him is now in prison, and the other two are also in custody.

The constable's alarm whistle, which is supposed to be an effective means of summoning aid, proved useless, as the wounds rendered him unable to apply it to his mouth, and when it was blown by the first arrival to arrive at the scene, it failed to secure any assistance.

Only articles possessing some special and acknowledged excellence are worth imitating; and thus, induced by the unprecedented success of Powell's Balm of Aniseed, dishonest traders with reckless audacity have tried to pass off on the public utility worthless imitations, or to offer a 'falsehood' of their own craft concealing. Hence, therefore, to protect the public against such fraudulent imitations, the well-known Trade Mark—"Lion, Net, and Gunboat"—is here placed on the wrapper.
